TOURNAMENT OF CHAMPIONS

THE nation's two top-ranked teams . . . the national champion of the past two years . . . a Cinderella team that won 10 straight Big Ten games and capped a tournament bid by stopping the country's No. 3-ranked team. That's the championship bracket for the 19th annual National Collegiate Basketball Tournament!

Whittled out of a 23-team field including all sections of the country (the original entry represented 17 different states), this quartet of regional winners enters the final leg in pursuit of the James W. St. Clair Trophy, emblematic of the National Collegiate Basketball Championship—

University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. The nation's No. 1-ranked team. Winner of 30 straight games, an all-time single season record for collegiate basketball. Champion of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

University of Kansas, Lawrence. Ranked No. 2 nationally. No. 1 team the first six weeks of the 1956-57 season. Champion of the Big Seven Conference. Record: Won 23, lost 2.

University of San Francisco. National Collegiate champion in 1955 and 1956. Owner of college basketball's longest winning streak of 60 consecutive games. Champion of the California Basketball Association. Record: Won 20, lost 6.

Michigan State University, East Lansing. Ranked among the top 15 teams of the country following its "rags to riches" climb to the Big Ten Conference title and a resounding upset of No. 3-ranked University of Kentucky. Record: Won 16, Lost 8.

Under the revised tournament plan of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, these four were screened by competition involving the entire 23-team field in a series of 19 first round and regional games.

From the time the National Collegiate Championship was inaugurated in 1939 until 1951, only the nation's top eight teams qualified for the national championship. In 1951, this tournament pattern was changed to provide that champions of certain conferences be automatically qualified for the tournament and the remainder of the field be made up of outstanding independents, or "at-large" institutions. Since 1951, the size of the tournament field has been tripled, making it truly a "Tournament of Champions."

Three of the 1957 finalists—Kansas, Michigan State and San Francisco—jumped directly into regional play and won two games each for finals berths, but North Carolina was required to hurdle three foes to earn the trip to Kansas City.

Michigan State is the only one of the four not previously a tournament team, but the other three own outstanding records in National Championship play.

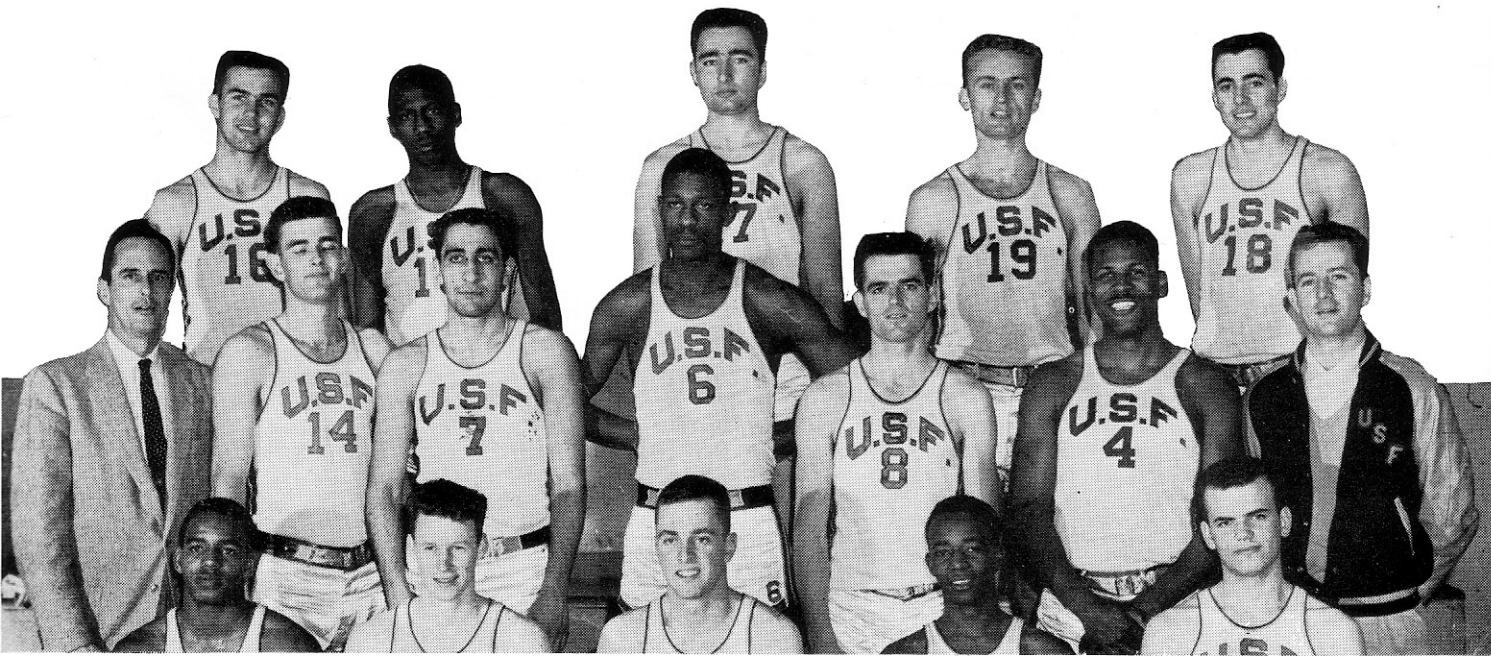

San Francisco, national champion the past two years, has won 11 straight tournament games, one short of the record mark set by Kentucky over an eight-year span, 1945-52.

Kansas has appeared in more Championships than any other finalist. The Jayhawks have competed in four, winning one (1952) and placing second twice (1940 and 1953).

North Carolina lost out in the opening round in its first tournament venture in 1941, but came back in 1946 to place second to Oklahoma A & M College.

NCAA Serves as Athletic Voice For Colleges and Universities

IMPORTANT as the forward pass and the platoon system have been to the evolution of football, neither has influenced the over-all development of intercollegiate athletics as did the flying wedge at the turn of the century.

It was the flying wedge, football's major offense in 1905, that spurred the formulation of the National Collegiate Athletic Association 51 years ago this month.

The rugged nature of football, typified by the mass formations and gang tackling, was causing too many injuries and deaths. Many institutions discontinued the sport. Others advocated that it be abolished from the intercollegiate program.

Public clamor rose to such crescendo that President Theodore Roosevelt summoned athletics leaders to two White House conferences to urge reformation of the game and warned an executive edict might be forthcoming if his request passed unheeded.

The NCAA evolved from a meeting of 13 colleges and universities called in early December, 1905, to bring about reforms in the playing rules. At a second meeting December 28 in New York, the Intercollegiate Athletic Association was founded, and was officially constituted March 31, 1906. The NCAA took its present name in 1910.

From its original function as a discussion society which had such business as the drafting of rules, conduct of national championships and related matters, the NCAA has become "an organization devoted to the sound administration of intercollegiate athletics in all of its phases."

Whereas early member colleges and universities pondered primarily over football and the flying wedge, today's NCAA members consider any athletic problem which has spread across regional lines and has become national in character.

This change in the NCAA's scope was effected shortly after World War II when the Association's membership voted itself legislative and executive powers. The increased role the NCAA was to play in intercollegiate athletics was indicated by the immediate attempt of the colleges and universities to resolve enforcement and television problems through the NCAA.

Subjected to as merciless a scrutiny as that imposed by the flying wedge nearly 50 years previous, intercollegiate athletics attempted to solve its No. 1 problem through an abortive enforcement effort called the "Sanity Code." Though this effort (1948-50) was unsuccessful, the NCAA re-entered the enforcement business in 1952.

As early as 1949, NCAA member institutions felt television affected their football attendance and appropriated money to conduct a survey; since 1951, the colleges and universities have overwhelmingly endorsed limited live television of their games.

Though television and enforcement have been most prominent, the Association's 492 colleges and universities, conferences and coaches' organizations carry on many diversified activities through the NCAA. For example, the NCAA—

... conducts National Collegiate Championship events in 13 sports—baseball, basketball, boxing, cross-country, fencing, golf, gymnastics, ice hockey, skiing, swimming, tennis, track and field, and wrestling. A 14th Championship event, the College Division Basketball Championship, was inaugurated this month... The National Collegiate series dates back to 1883 and over this 74-year span more than 30,000 student-athletes have competed in these events, with 1,782 earning the coveted title, "National Collegiate Champion."

... maintains 13 rules committees to "formulate, copyright, and publish rules of play for the government of collegiate sports." Members of these committees are selected by representatives of member institutions at the NCAA's annual Convention each January.

... publishes annual "Official Guides" in nine sports through the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau. The

Kansas Jayhawks

THE University of Kansas brings the second-best season record into the National Collegiate championship finals, a 23-2 total, and the game's most publicized individual in Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain, its 7-foot sophomore center.

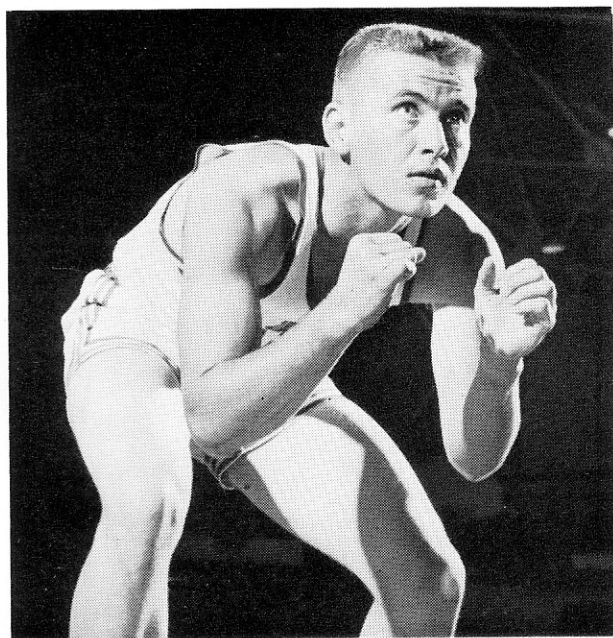

Kansas, whose only defeats were 2-point setbacks on final second shots by Iowa State and Oklahoma A&M, had the narrowest brush with disaster in regional tournament play than any of the four finalists. The Jayhawks broke away from a 59-59 deadlock at the end of regulation play to down Southern Methodist, 73 to 65, in overtime in the opening round of the Western Regional tournament. They easily subdued Oklahoma City University, 81 to 61, to gain a finals berth.

Chamberlain went into the Dallas regional as the nation's fourth-ranked scorer with a 29.5 average. He hit 66 points in the regional to bring his season total to 745 and his average to 29.8. His 37 rebounds at Dallas ran his season total to 485, an average of 19.4 per game.

Teams which have concentrated on stopping the prolific Chamberlain have found to their dismay that veteran members of the Jayhawk squad can be equally as damaging. Senior Forward Gene Elstun took scoring honors against Missouri with 26 points and tied Chamberlain with 12 against Iowa State in the Big Seven tournament. Elstun's running mate, sophomore forward Ron Loneski flipped in 28 against Oklahoma and tied Chamberlain for scoring laurels with 19 against Iowa State.

Add senior guard Maurice King, a deadly one-handed jump shooter, Senior guard John Parker who has been shooting at better than a 40% clip, and senior utility man, forward-center Lew Johnson, and you have potent support for the All-America Chamberlain.

One of three seniors on the Kansas starting lineup, Guard John Parker also is the shortest—and one of the scrappiest. A steady ball-handler and effective shooter, Parker is team co-captain. He is 6-0, weighs 173 and lives at Mission, Kans.

A veteran when it comes to National Collegiate tournament play, Kansas won the national crown in 1952 by defeating St. John's, 68 to 58. In 1940, the Jayhawks beat Rice and Southern California in opening rounds and then were downed, 60 to 42 by Indiana in the championship final. In 1942 Kansas lost, 44 to 46, to Colorado in the first round. In 1953 it defeated Oklahoma City, Oklahoma A & M, and Washington to go into the finals, only to lose, 68 to 69, to Indiana.

Wilt Chamberlain's driving, stratospheric ability is aptly illustrated here. The 7-foot Philadelphia sophomore can jump and stretch up to 12½ feet and is the middle man in KU's zone defense which has been effectively employed the final half of the season. The sensational sophomore is 19 years of age, weighs 215.

Veteran Co-captain Gene Elstun is the steady influence on the Kansas club. The 6-3 senior forward is completing his third year as a Jayhawk regular. An all-stater at Shawnee-Mission, Kas., High School, Elstun weighs 175 and is 21 years of age.

A popular campus spot is the newly remodeled and expanded Memorial Union at the University of Kansas . . . At the right is Blake Hall, original home of the Physics Department, which was built in 1885. At that time 500 students were enrolled in Physics. Now more than 1,000 take courses in this field.

Ronnie Loneski, one of two sophomores in the starting Kansas lineup, has sufficiently recovered from a broken foot suffered in the opening game of the season to rank fourth in team scoring and rebounding. He is a 6-4½, 210-pound sophomore from Calumet City, Ill. He is 19 years of age.

Veteran senior guard Maurice King plays a stellar floor game for Kansas and possesses a deadly 1-handed jump shot. A native of Kansas City, Mo., King is 21 years of age, is 6-2½ tall, and weighs 190.

MEET THE COACHES

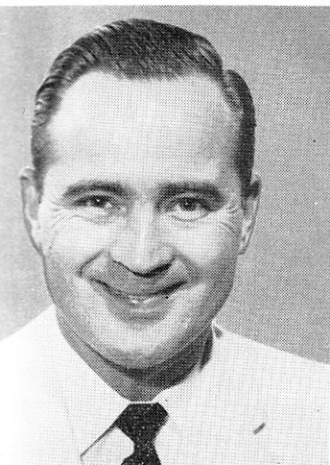

Frank J. McGuire — North Carolina

TRIP to National Collegiate championship finals climaxes 5-year rebuilding program initiated at North Carolina by McGuire. . . . Came to UNC in 1953 from St. John's in Brooklyn after guiding that team to the National Collegiate finals where it lost, 63 to 80, to Kansas in 1952. . . . In five seasons at St. John's, his teams won 106, lost 36.

Previous to taking the St. John's post, he coached at Brooklyn's Xavier high school where he had earned letters in three sports as a student. He was a basketball star at St. John's, being graduated in 1936. His coaching career was interrupted by Navy service during World War II.

Going into this season, McGuire's North Carolina teams had a 66-36 record. Going into the championship finals this weekend, McGuire's record now stands at 96-36 on the basis of the Tar Heels' 30-game winning streak, the longest single season victory streak in college basketball history.

Married and the father of two daughters and a son.

Forrest (Forddy) Anderson — Michigan State

THIS is the third National Collegiate finals appearance for Anderson. His Bradley team bowed to LaSalle, 76 to 92, in 1954, when the finale of the tournament was held in Kansas City. In 1950, Bradley was runnerup to CCNY. Before moving to Michigan State in 1954, Anderson had successful careers at Bradley, and the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. Prior to going to Michigan State, his teams won 205, lost 84. His Bradley teams were involved in six tournaments, including two Sugar Bowl invitational, two National Collegiate tournaments, and two National Invitational tournaments. Anderson's Michigan State record now stands at 42-26.

Born in Gary, Ind., Anderson played basketball and football at Emerson High School. His college ball was played at Stanford University where he made the All-Pacific Coast Conference team during his junior year, 1940-41.

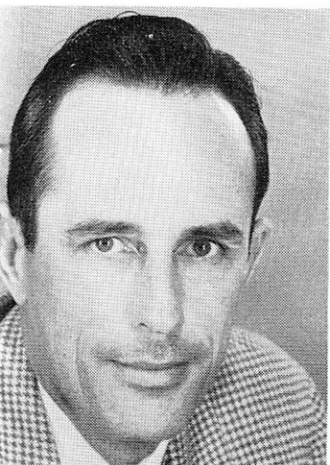

A Navy veteran, Anderson put in destroyer duty as well as two seasons at Great Lakes, one as player and one as coach. . . . He is married and has three children, two girls and one boy.

Dick Harp — Kansas

NEWCOMER at the Jayhawk helm this year is Dick Harp, the 38-year-old former Kansas star, who succeeded Dr. F. C. "Phog" Allen last year after the Doctor had guided Kansas basketball for 39 years. No newcomer to Midwest cage circles, Harp was assistant coach at Kansas from 1949 and was head coach two years previously at William Jewell.

Harp was co-captain of the 1940 KU team which lost to Indiana, 40-62, in the second national championship tournament held in Kansas City. His long 2-hander in the final 30 seconds nipped Oklahoma A & M, 54-53, in a fifth-district playoff that sent the Jayhawks into the 1940 finals.

In his first season as Kansas head coach, Harp has seen his team compile a 23-2 record going into the championship finals.

Phil Woolpert — San Francisco

A National Collegiate tournament veteran who could become the first coach to ever direct teams to three consecutive national titles, Woolpert has had a fantastically successful record at San Francisco. His teams won the national crown in 1955 and 1956 and now have a crack at an unprecedented third straight title.

His four-year prep coaching record in San Francisco was 63 victories, 29 defeats. . . . came to USF seven years ago and his compiled the following marks: 9-17, 11-13, 11-12, 14-7, 28-1, 29-0, and 20-6.

His college playing experience included one year at Los Angeles City College and the remainder of his career at Loyola University.

Michigan State Spartans

MICHIGAN State University's initial appearance in National Collegiate tournament competition this weekend marks the climax to a rags-to-riches story that began with the Spartans in the Big Ten cellar early in the season, a 4-7 record at the halfway mark, and culminated in a 10-game winning streak that earned them a tie for the league crown with Indiana.

That whirlwind finish gave Coach Forddy Anderson's crew a 10-4 Big Ten record, a regular season mark of 14-8 and best for an MSU five since the 1941-42 team won 15 and lost 6.

Nor does the Spartans' Cinderella record end there. They edged Notre Dame, 85 to 83, in the Midwest NCAA regional at Lexington, Kentucky, after losing 76 to 86 to the Irish earlier in the season. Then to clinch a berth in the Kansas City finals, MSU rebounded from a 35 to 47 halftime deficit against Kentucky (the nation's third-ranked team) to win the regional title with an 80 to 68 upset victory.

Michigan State gave Kansas City fans an inkling of its latent power when it finished third in the always-tough Big Seven pre-season tournament last December. State defeated Nebraska, lost to Colorado, and bounced Oklahoma.

But this is a different Spartan team and the main difference is the second semester addition of John Green, a spring-legged sophomore who never played high school basketball. The 6-5 youngster is the team's top rebounder with 230 saves and is the team's fourth leading scorer with 218 points, an average of 13.6 per game. In the regional at Lexington, Green grabbed 27 rebounds against Notre Dame and collected 18 against Kentucky even though he sat out a third of the game because of fouls.

Leading point-getter on the Michigan State squad is All-Big Ten Guard Jack Quiggle. A South Bend, Ind., native, Quiggle is a 6-3, 190-pound junior. He not only is a top shot but also is an excellent ball handler and strong floor man.

The Spartan attack is even balanced with three starters scoring more than 300 points this season. Top point producer is Jack Quiggle, an all-Big Ten selection, who has hit 358 points for a 15.5 average. Other scoring among the starting five includes: Larry Hedden, 349, 14.5 average; Captain George Ferguson, 319, 13.3 average; Green, 218, 13.6 average; and Pat Wilson, 102, 4.3 average.

Team Captain George Ferguson was named "most valuable player" by teammates at the close of the regular season. The 6-3, 190-pound junior earned all-state honors at North Providence, R. I., high school.

Forward Larry Hedden, Michigan State's second leading scorer, is married and the father of two children. One of four Indianans on the MSU squad, Hedden is 6-5, weighs 185 and is 22 years of age.

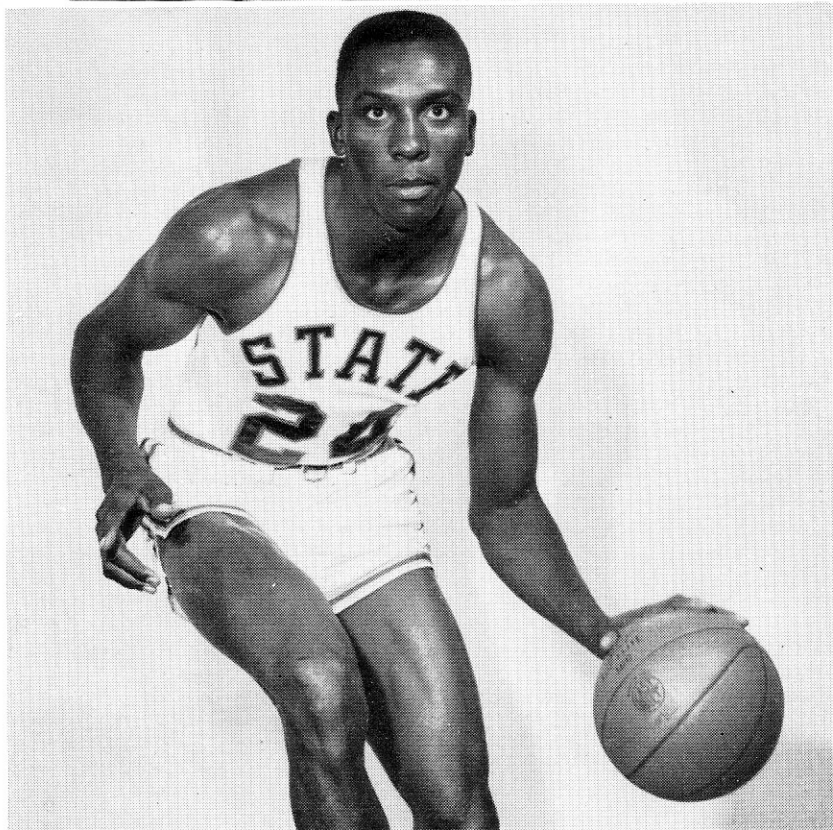

The statue of The Spartan, a familiar landmark on the Michigan State campus, is symbolic of the University's outstanding athletic teams.

The 3-story Student Union building at Michigan State University is gathering point for student activities at the land grant college.

The $2,200,000 Kellogg Center, home of Michigan State's Continuing Education Service is one of the most impressive buildings on the campus. It is the nation's largest laboratory for hotel and restaurant students and is the headquarters for special courses and conferences, business and industrial programs and educational and community services.

Center John Green, a 6-5 jumping jack, joined the Spartans at mid-year and was a main factor in the team's second semester drive for the Big Ten co-championship. He is a 215-pound sophomore from Dayton, Ohio.

Guire, Manager Joe Fleishman, Bob Young, Lennie Rosenbluth, Joe Quigg, Pete Brennan, Assistant Coach Buck Freeman, and Trainer John Lacey.

North Carolina Tar Heels

THE longest single season victory skein in college basketball history will be placed on the line by the University of North Carolina in the National Collegiate Championship finals. The Tar Heels won 24 straight in regular season competition, took three more in its Atlantic Coast Conference tournament to decide the loop's representative in tournament play, then swept aside three opponents in Eastern first round and regional competition for a total of 30 straight victories.

In recording its first undefeated season since 1924, North Carolina becomes the third team to move undefeated into National Collegiate tournament action. Columbia did it in 1951 with a 21-0 record and San Francisco had a 25-0 total in 1956.

Spearheading the North Carolina attack is Lennie Rosenbluth, a unanimous choice on the All-America selections this season. The 6-5 senior has scored 846 points in 30 games for an average of 28.2 per contest. He hit 29 points as the Tar Heels upended Yale, 90 to 74, in the first round tournament game at New York; blasted Canisius with 39 in the second round at Philadelphia as North Carolina won, 87 to 75; and added 23 points as his club trounced Syracuse, 67 to 58, to win a berth in the championship finals.

North Carolina is far from being a one-man team, though the records show that the Tar Heels rely on their five starters for most of the scoring. Ninety-three per cent of Carolina's points have been produced by the five starters with the sixth man on the squad scoring no more than 25 points.

Pete Brennan is No. 2 scorer with 446 points and a 14.9 average; Tommy Kearns, third with 394 and 13.1; Joe Quigg, next with 307 and Sharp-shooting Guard Bob Cunningham, New York City junior. This 20-year-old, 6-4 upperclassman was top scorer with 16 points in UNC's 64-59 victory over New York University during regular season play.

10.6, and Bob Cunningham, fifth with 210 and 7.0. From there, total point production drops all the way down to the 25 figure.

This will be North Carolina's third appearance in the National Collegiate tournament. Pittsburgh stopped the Tar Heels, 26-20, in a first round game in 1941. In 1946, UNC whipped New York University and Ohio State in opening rounds and then were dropped, 43 to 40, by Oklahoma A & M in the championship finals. It is Coach Frank McGuire's second tournament appearance. His St. John's team was beaten by Kansas in the championship finals in 1952 at Seattle, Washington.

A transplanted Yankee from New York City, Lennie Rosenbluth is the top-ranking cager in North Carolina history, an All-American choice on every major team. The 6-5 senior played little high school ball because of a New York coach's strike but picked up experience in a YMCA league and at Staunton Military Academy. He currently lives at Greenville, Tennessee.

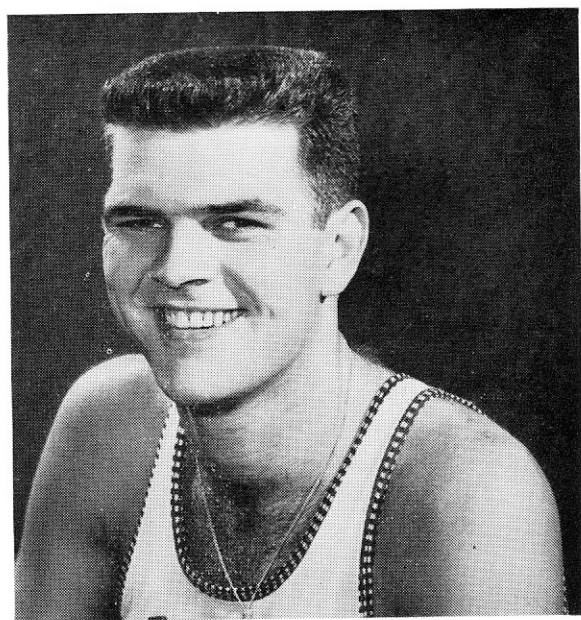

Junior Guard Pete Brennan specializes in a pop shot from all angles and is a heavy worker under the boards. He is 6-6, 20 years of age, weighs 190 and is a native of Brooklyn, N. Y.

The sylvan enclosure around North Carolina's Morehead Building makes a striking frame for the planetarium's front columns... The landscaped symmetry around the Morehead Patterson Bell Tower on the North Carolina campus is caught in this photograph at the right.

Below, one of the most improved cagers on the North Carolina squad is Tommy Kearns, Jr., who saw limited action as a sophomore last year. He is 5-11, and a 20-year-old native of Bergenfield, N. J. . . . At right, another Brooklyn native, Joe Quigg, Jr., is finishing his second year as a regular. A rugged 6-9, 215-pound center, Quigg is at his best under the boards.

WON-AND-LOST RECORDS

THE 1957 National Collegiate Basketball Championship, made up of a 23-team field, listed three institutions as newcomers when competition opened for the national title on March 11. The addition of these three brings to 105 the number of NCAA member institutions which have participated in the event over its 19-year-history.

One of the newcomers, Michigan State, qualified for the championship round on the strength of two consecutive victories and stands at the top of the won-and-lost column with defending champion San Francisco and Stanford with 1.000 marks. Other newcomers in the 1957 field, eliminated in regional play, were Syracuse and Lafayette.

San Francisco, with 11 consecutive victories in tournament play, needs only one more triumph to equal the consecutive victory string set by Kentucky over an eight-year span, 1945-52.

The Wildcats, three times national champion, have qualified for the Championship more times than any other NCAA institution — nine — and have won more games, 16.

San Francisco Dons

A feat never before accomplished in National Collegiate tournament competition faces the University of San Francisco. Tournament winners the past two years, the Dons could become the first team in history to win three straight championships. Oklahoma A&M took two in a row in 1945 and 1946 and Kentucky duplicated the feat in 1948 and 1949.

Playing without All-Americans Bill Russell and K. C. Jones, and with only one senior on hand, the Dons were given little chance at the start of the season of repeating as California Basketball Association champions, let alone being one of the final four teams in National Collegiate tourney play.

San Francisco took a 55-game winning streak into the current season and proceeded to run it up to 60 straight. The Dons then lost four of five games on a disastrous Eastern swing as their ace guard, Gene "The Pilot" Brown, watched from the sidelines because of a broken hand.

Taking a 6-4 record into CBA play, the Dons, with Brown back in action, swept through the league with a 12-2 record. In the regional tournament at Corvallis, Ore., Brown paced San Francisco to a 66 to 51 victory over Idaho State with 18 points and then hit 20 the next night as the Dons upset California, 50 to 46.

The "comeback kids," lead by the trio of Brown, 6-7 forward, Mike Farmer, and 6-9 sophomore Art Day, are a strong defensive club. USF is tied with Oklahoma A&M for the top defensive ranking (54.6), according to the latest figures of the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau, marking the third straight year for that honor by the Dons.

Farmer is the Dons' top point producer with 307 but he trails Brown and Day in scoring averages. Brown, who missed five games because of the broken hand, has hit 301 in 20 games for a 15.0 average. Day has the same total but played in five more games for a 12.0 average. Other scoring among the starting five includes: Al Dunbar, 193, 7.4 average; and Mike Preaseau, 159, 6.6 average.

Mike Preaseau is one of seven juniors on San Francisco's varsity. A fiery forward, Preaseau is the fifth-leading scorer and the fourth ranking rebounder on the Don squad. He is 6-5, weighs 185, is 20 years of age and comes from Redding, California.

Sparkplug of the Don attack is Guard Eugene Brown who came into his own last year when he stepped into the post vacated by All-America K. C. Jones who was ineligible for National Collegiate tournament competition. A great rebounder and dribbler, Brown has a deadly jump shot and has hit with it enough this year to pace his team in scoring with a 15.0 game average. He is 6-2½ tall, weighs 170, is 20 years old, a junior, and lives in San Francisco.

The heaviest man on the Don squad is 230-pound Bill Mallen. The junior guard gives the squad reserve depth under the board and has hit 80 points during the season. He is 6-3½ tall, 20 years of age, a junior and is a native San Franciscan.

Junior Guard Al Dunbar is a classy guard who can dribble well and is a good all-around floor man. A transfer from Hannibal-LaGrange Junior College, Hannibal, Mo., Dunbar teams with Brown at the guard posts. He is 5-11, weighs 155, is a 21-year-old junior and lives at Kansas City, Mo.

Second tallest man on the Don squad is 6-7 Mike Farmer, the team's top scorer with 307 points. A rugged rebounder, he leads the squad with 261 saves. He owns a jump shot effective around the key hole and can hook them from close in. He weighs 215, is a 20-year-old junior and lives at Richmond, California.

Phelan Hall is San Francisco's new student residence completed in 1955 at a cost of $1,500,000. This seven-story steel and concrete building offers dining facilities for 1,000 persons as well as a barber shop, snack bar and lounges on each of the dormitory floors.

Richard A. Gleeson Library was finished in 1950 at a cost of $1,500,000. It has a shelving capacity of 104,000 volumes which can be expanded to 821,500 volumes.
